Dear Professor Castillo,

I am writing to you on behalf of the LSE International Inequalities Institute to confirm our interest in participating as a partner institution of the project “The politics of deservingness and social welfare”, sponsored by the Universidad de Chile, the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Universidad Diego Portales and Universidad de Valparaíso, and that we are submitting for funding to the competition entitled “Millennium Nucleus in Social Sciences 2021”.

The International Inequalities Institute at LSE brings together experts from many LSE departments and centres to lead critical and cutting edge research to understand why inequalities are escalating in numerous arenas across the world, and to develop critical tools to address these challenges.

I confirm that the International Inequalities Institute will collaborate with this project in research related to social inequality issues and social welfare. Besides, members of our institution will participate in academic exchange of doctoral and post-doctoral students, as well as in research internships and conferences organized by the project.

Sincerely,

Francisco H. G. Ferreira

Dear Professor Castillo,

I am writing to you on behalf of the Stone Center on Socio-Economic Inequality to confirm our interest in participating as a partner institution of the project "The politics of deservingness and social welfare", sponsored by the Universidad de Chile, the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Universidad Diego Portales and Universidad de Valparaíso, and that we are submitting for funding to the competition entitled "Millennium Nucleus in Social Sciences 2021".

The Stone Center conducts and promotes quantitative research using inequality as a lens on society, the economy and politics. The faculty, postdoctoral scholars, and students working within the Center share a commitment to scholarship that is data-driven, interdisciplinary, and policy-oriented, and addresses questions about inequality throughout the world.

I confirm that the Stone Center will collaborate with this project in research related to social inequality and social welfare. Members of our institution may also participate in academic exchanges of doctoral and post-doctoral students, as well as in research internships and conferences organized by the project.

Sincerely,

Leslie McCall

Dear Professor Castillo,

I am writing to you on behalf of the program trAndeS - Advanced Studies on Inequalities and Sustainability in the Andean Region to confirm our interest in participating as a partner institution of the Millennium Nucleus “The politics of deservingness and social welfare”, sponsored by the Universidad de Chile, the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Universidad Diego Portales and Universidad de Valparaíso, that we are submitting for funding to the competition entitled “Millennium Nucleus in Social Sciences 2021”.

trAndeS is a structured postgraduate program based at the Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú (PUCP) that contributes to sustainable development in the Andean region through its research and training activities. The project partners are Freie Universität Berlin, the Institute for Latin American Studies and Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú (PUCP). trAndeS is financed by the German Academic Exchange Service (Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst, DAAD) with funding from the German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (Bundesministerium für Wirtschaftliche Zusammenarbeit und Entwicklung, BMZ). trAndeS focuses its efforts linking two dimensions: sustainable development as addressed by the UN 2030 Agenda and the serious socioeconomic, sociopolitical and socioecological inequalities that persist in the Andean region. Our goal is to identify how these inequalities present challenges to achieving development targets how progress toward these targets can contribute to reduction of these inequalities.

I confirm that our institution will collaborate with this project, particularly in research in the topics of multidimensional social inequalities, power asymmetries and institutions-building as well as governance of natural resources. Besides, members of our institution will participate in academic exchanges of doctoral and post-doctoral students, as well as in research internships and conferences organized by the project.

Sincerely,

Dear Professor Castillo,

I am writing to you on behalf of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in Chile to confirm our interest in participating as a partner institution of the Millennium Nucleus “The politics of deservingness and social welfare”, sponsored by Universidad de Chile, Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Universidad Diego Portales and Universidad de Valparaíso, that is being submitted for funding to the competition entitled “Millennium Nucleus in Social Sciences 2021”.

UNDP works in about 170 countries and territories, helping to eradicate poverty, reduce inequalities and exclusion, and build resilience so countries can sustain progress. As the United Nations’ development agency, UNDP plays a critical role in helping countries achieve the 2030 Agenda and its 17 Sustainable Development Goals.

I confirm the interest of our institution in collaborating with this project, particularly in topics related to the legitimacy of welfare and social protection policies. Through this collaboration, members of our institution will engage in different academic activities organized by this project, including but not limited to research meetings, workshops and seminars. Furthermore, our extensive experience working with men and women from the civil society at a community level will serve as an opportunity to link the knowledge and policy recommendations of this project to other areas of society.

Sincerely,

Marcela Ríos
